

The King of the Body is the brain; the stomach its main support; the nerves its messer gers; the bowels, the kidners and the porce its safesuards. Indigestion creates a violent revolt among these attaches of the regal organ, and to bring them back to their duty, there is nothing like the regulating, purifying, lovigoratins, cooling operation of Targany's tancers APPRIENT. It renovates the system and restores to health both the body and the mind.

A Tale of Brazes Immoratily.

New York, 25.—Herald's Detroit: Same time *go Circuit Court Commissioner Flow-re, or this city, was appointed special examiner to take the describions of G orge A. C. and Victor H. Christiancy, to be used in the divorce case now pending in Washington, wherein ex-Minister Isaac P. Christiancy is complainant, and his wife. Lilie P. Christiancy, is defendant. The depositions have been taken and forwarded to Washington George A. C. testifies: Mr. Hsiget and Mrs. Christiancy and myself left Lims on Saturday, 6th of August, 1870, for Chiels. The trip had been arranged the evaning that Hsight called, the day he arraved back from the south. When we arranged to go, father saked Hsight to accompany Mrs. Christiancy and myself well and the time, and din dot know whether he cuid go, as he was not well at the time, and din dot know whether he would be able to go on Saturday monic; but he sake did Haight and his step-muther. On one occasion, he says he sain in Hsight's lap and combed his hair. He adds: I did not thick anything of those thing at the time, and I had such implicit raith in her, and as she remarked, he seemed just like my brother Victor. We were in the habit of walking out a great deal while we were there, and they appeared very fead of each other. One afternoon while we were at Matucuno, we all walked down the railroad about a mile and a half from the town, and we went into a field, where there were quite a number of bushes and as a great deal while we were at Matucuno, we all walked down the railroad shout a mile and a half from the town, and we went into a field, where there were quite a number of bushes and as a firm the town, and we went into a field, where there are guite a number of bushes and as a firm the time, and the health of the complete the were quite a number of bushes and as a firm the town, and we went into a field, where there are guite and the many of the complete the complete the comple and Haight requested me to go back to the hotel and bring a basket of lunch. I went back and was gone half or three the hotel and bring a basket of lunch. I went back and was gone half or three quarters of an hour; brought back a lunch, wine, etc., and when I returned they were still there and they appeared to be very friendly. They spoke in very front terms while we were there all the afternoon. The second night we were at Chicla I could not sleep. I got up and went on the platform. I saw Haight come out of Mrs. Christiancy's room. He stopped and then waiked up to me and said: "I was just going after you. I have been in Lillie's room and she has a hendache, and told me to come in after you." When she saw me she seemed tather mashed, and Haight said: "I have just been after George, and told him you nad a headache and wanted to see him." She did not appear to be sick at all. Both Mrs. Christiancy and Haight told me not to tel of this occurrence. On the 21st of Augurt Haight and Mrs. Christiancy were chatting in the parlor. George continues: I went into father's bed room and father told me he had seen Mrs. Christiancy sitting on Haight's lap, and he did not like it. He finally consented not to say anything about it. At the time I thought it was not anything at all. I had become so used to seeing such things as that that I did not think about there being any impropriety about it. My room at Lima was next adjoining father's and Mrs. Christiancy's. I could hear anything that was said between the two rooms. On Sunday morning, the 24th before I was up, I heard Mrs Christiancy.'s I could hear anything that was said between the two rooms. On Sunday morning, the 24th before I was up, I heard Mrs Christiancy.'s I could hear anything the said all and to the too turbered would hear anything that was said between the two rooms. On Sunday morning, the 24th before I was up, I heard Mrs Christiancy.'s I could hear anything at large and the court, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said Alexander Lawson at the time of his death, and all the right, title and the right to represent the said Alexander Lawson at the time of his deat was up, I heard Mrs Christiancy. She wished she had some sort of a poultice or plaster, and isther said he would get up and get it for her. I heard him go out plaster, and isther said he would get up and get it for her. I heard him go out of the room and shortly he returned and then I heard him say from the sitting room that some one was ringing the bell and he looked out the door and saw Haight. Then he came back into the bedroom and I heard him say to Mrs. Christiancy that Haight was there and that he asked what he was doing there so early in the morning. Mrs. Christiancy said, "Oh, I invited him to breakfast. I must get right up; take this poultice."

Administratrix of the estate of Alexander. I must get right up; take this poultice right off so that I can get up," and she got up and dressed and when I got up she was in the parlor with Haight and father was in bed. All through that day Haight and Mrs. Christiancy were together, constantly, as my father was in his room most of the time. He was in the legation a short time trying to work. At length the presence of Haight became obnexious to Christiancy, and George tells how violent Mrs. C. became when his father talked to her about it. He then tells of Haight calling in the postmaster and being brought up stairs by Mrs. Christiancy, unknown to his father. They remained in the parlor until after 11 o'clock. I'r peatedly told Haight that he ought not to stay there. He refused to go, and Mrs. Christiancy asked him not to go, and he did not go. About 11 o'clock father came by one of the doors which were open and saw Haight. He hesitated for a moment, and then father said: "I think it is about time I should know who controls this house. He said no more, but passed on through the parsor and through the dining room into a back passage, that leads to the servant's room and kitchen. He called Edwin, the steward, and told him to go down to the corner and call up the guard and tell them to protect the house from all intruders. While he was gone Haight told Mrs. Christiancy and myself that he thought it was about time he was going, and Mrs. C. said: "If you go I shall go." She then turned to me and said that it she went I would have to go too, as it would tuin her reputation for life if she went out with Haight slone, I told her I would not go. She said I would have to. Father came up, and when he entered the parler Haight got up to go, and he passed through the door. As he got up Mrs. Christiancy arose and said: "If he passed through the door. As he up Mrs. Christiancy arose and said: up Mrs. Christiancy arose and said: "If you will go I will go with you." As he passed out of the door, father, in a kind voice, said: "Lillie, I don't want you to go," and she said "I am going, nevertheless. I am going with Haight." Then father said: "If you must go, I can't help it." Haight and Mrs. Christiancy passed out, and Mrs. Christiancy took his arm. Mrs. Christiancy called me from the yard. I did not know what to do, because she told me it would ruin her reputation if I did not go, and father had told me to obey her always, and in the confusion of the moment, without really thinking what I ought to do, I went out to where she was, passed out and took
